Teacher of the Year
*Jeanine Mankoff

The 2020-2021 School year was an excellent example of the dedication of our community, educators, staff, and administration to remain focused on our students. We are very proud of our work this past year. Our District had the most in-person learning days across the state and, in many cases, across our nation. That was due in large part to our continued ability to have high expectations for our children and ourselves. We continue to strive every day to ensure that all of our students thrive academically and socially.

While we are all still dealing with the pandemic, I am confident that our District is ready to take on whatever this year may bring. Our community, educators, staff, and administrators continue to put the needs of our children at the center of every decision. Our goal is to continue to acknowledge, adjust and applaud all of the efforts of the District and the community as we get ready for another great year.

Our District Back-to-School Plan is linked here for your review. This plan will be updated as we continue to adjust to updated guidance from RIDOH and the state. There will also be a link on our website for easy access to this plan. We also recommend that you review our District Back-to-School FAQ in order to find some common questions that have been asked as it relates to returning to school.

On behalf of the Chariho Regional School District, we stand committed to ensuring another successful school year.
